A Place Whither Are Brought the Flotsam and Jetsam of London and Its Suburbs—Queer Articles Found in Cabs, Cars and Omnibuses.

The majority of articles left by their owners in public carriages consists of such things as umbrellas, sticks, hand-bags, wraps, cigar cases and opera and field glasses. It is easy to understand, says the London Times, how such small items of personal impedimenta as these may be left behind, especially after dark, for although some of the better class of hansoms now carry inside lamps this luxury has not yet been extended to the greater proportion of them or to any of the four-wheeled cabs. But it is astonishing to find what a number of really valuable properties have been left in cabs during the last few years. The following is a list of some of the principal ones, with the values on which the rewards to the drivers were based: A bag of jewelry, valued at £1,500, and another at £1,000; a case containing £1,000 in Bank of England notes; a diamond necklet, value £1,000; a diamond tiara worth £850; several packets of bonds valued at £3,000, £1,500 and £1,000 respectively; silver plate weighing 1,084 ounces, valued at £240; a parcel of bank notes for £830, and numerous other items of the same nature, but rather less valuable. Of course all the articles and properties just named were claimed by the owners, the drivers of the cabs in which they were found receiving pecuniary rewards; but, although it can not be said that the sums paid them were inadequate, they certainly can not be considered excessive. Thus, for the diamond tiara, valued at £850, the reward was £35. In cases, however, where bank notes or bags of gold are deposited the sums awarded are properly based upon a considerably higher scale.

The most valuable deposit was made some few years ago, when a thoughtless clerk, belonging to a bank situated not a hundred yards from Scotland Yard, left notes and securities amounting to several thousand pounds in a cab that he discharged at the door of the bank. Within two minutes of being paid his fare the driver had deposited them in the Lost Property Office. It is a nice point in ethics whether, as the cab-man knew to whom the property belonged, he was justified in taking it to the Lost Property Department. Self-interest, however, and a literal interpretation of the statute on the subject outweighed any conscientious scruples the cab-driver may have had on that score, and the result to him, at all events, was satisfactory, as he received a reward sufficiently large to enable him to start as a small cab proprietor with a couple of horses and a "hansom" cab.

It may seem a strange assertion to make, but it is nevertheless true, that the owners of some of the articles found in cabs have been by no means anxious to claim them. Indeed, some of their misfortunes in life have been directly traceable to a momentary forgetfulness on their part when leaving one of those useful vehicles. Stowed away in the pigeon-holes of the Metropolitan Police Department are to be found documents and letters which, being taken to the Lost Property Office, gave a timely warning to the police of some intended fraud or outrage, cleared up a doubtful clew, or possibly led to the arrest of a swindler who had long been preying upon the credulity of the public. If rumor is to be believed, even some police officers themselves have not the pleasantest recollections of some unfortunate lapses of memory which were the means of bringing to light papers (left by them in cabs) that were never intended for the eyes of their official superiors. The Lost Property Office, too, has been the scene of many an unfortunate reconter. It would be difficult to do justice to the feelings of the young undergraduate who, while relating one morning to an officer of the Lost Property Department his various wanderings the night before in a hansom cab in which he had left his cigarcase, discovered at his elbow an affectionate parent, of whom he had taken farewell en route to Oxford the previous day, bent on a somewhat similar inquiry after a favorite umbrella. More than one matrimonial jar, too, has been traceable to the unexpected meeting at Scotland Yard of husband and wife, intent on the recovery of property lost on journeys in which their mutual interests were by no means concerned. For such misfortunes as these, however, the department is not responsible.

Few people can have any idea of the immense amount of trouble the Lost Property Office takes to retrieve for the inhabitants and visitors of the metropolis losses that their own carelessness has brought upon them. It is certainly not the fault of this useful department that no owners can be found for nearly half the articles deposited with it. Every publicity is given by advertising them in the daily papers, and notices of properties found are sent to occupiers of houses, managers of hotels and theaters, in all cases in which the driver gives the number of the house, hote., etc., whence he was hired. Weekly advices are now sent to the Lost Luggage Department of the Railway Clearing-House in Drummond street, Euston square, of articles found in cabs when they have taken up or set down their "fares" at railway stations. These advices are very useful aids to the recovery of lost property, as claims are frequently made on the railway companies for articles which are subsequently found to have been left in cabs.

FEMININE FOOT-WEAR.

Tight Shoes as Popular as Ever—A Reform Needed Badly.

"Why do women wear tight shoes?" was asked a leading State street boot-maker for the fair sex by a Chicago Tribune reporter.

"Because they are foolish," he replied. "That is the only answer I can make, but if I were to try to convince my customers of the fact I would lose their trade. The ladies are particular about their pet vanity and they pay a great deal of attention to a nobby and snug-fitting shape."

"What are the effects of wearing tight shoes?" was asked of another maker.

"The effects are corns and diseased and crippled feet and continual misery. Women buy tight shoes because they are vain. Nine out of ten of the ladies who come in here tell the clerks they want shoes that are at least one size too small for them. By dint of stretching and the use of powdered soapstone many are enabled to get on and wear away shoes that are half a size or a size too small for them; but occasionally one is compelled to take the proper size for her feet, but it is at a sacrifice of her vanity, and the physical comfort enjoyed does not seem to compensate her for her apparent mental discomfort. A great many ladies insist on having shoes from special lasts that in no wise match the shape of their feet, and, as a rule, they are the kind who want high heels, although the stilt-like underpinning has largely gone out of fashion. The evils of high heels are, of course, well known."

"Most of our lady customers buy shoes that are too small for them," said another dealer. "The habit of wearing tight shoes is as bad as the Chinese practice of bandaging and deforming the feet of their female infants. The red Indians of America and the natives of Africa can give civilization instruction in respect to proper care of the feet. The natives never toe out, but put their feet forward in a perfectly straight line when walking. Livingstone, in his writings on Africa, relates how the natives laughed at the shape of the white man's feet, which they attributed to the boots they wore. The Crow Indians make their moccasins to toe in instead of out; they walk perfectly straight and have finely formed feet. There are ladies of my acquaintance who are almost confirmed invalids, and their ailments were brought about by wearing tight, high-heeled shoes, which threw their body forward and caused them to toe outward in walking. Many of my lady customers are such sufferers from corns that they do not like to go out of the house and are in misery all of the time when walking, yet they will not forego their vanity and wear a sensible, easy-fitting, broad-soled, low-heeled shoe. Some of them do not venture to walk at all, and only go out in their carriages or upon short expeditions where the street-cars can be utilized for almost the entire distance they desire to travel. I notice that a great deal is said about dress reform for women, and hope all contemplated reforms include the important matter of foot-wear. Of course, it makes no difference to us; the prices would remain the same were the fashion to change, but we have to supply the demand or go out of business, and it is undeniable that as far as the ladies are concerned the greatest demand is for tight shoes."

5 O'CLOCK EDITION.

Not Dead Yet.

Unless one has absolute certainty on his side it is always best to claim all that is coming to his cause. Especially is this true in matters pertaining to State or county or other large affairs where so many other people's rights and property are involved and where the general judgment is much more likely to be correct than the private opinion of one or two. The recent efforts of the Eureka Sentinel and the Silver State to sustain their efforts to annex Nevada to Utah led them to advance strained arguments which we doubt if they believed themselves, and they had a withering effect on the State's reputation so far as their influence went. They gave the enemies of Nevada, and they are numerous and active, just the kind of argument they needed, and they are not slow to use it.

The New York Times of July 28th, under the editorial head, "A Dying State," said:

While the people of Dakota, Montana, and Washington are looking forward to the approaching admission of their Territories to the union of States those of the State of Nevada are trying to devise a plan for the preservation of their dying Commonwealth by annexing it to some State or Territory that has life and promise of growth. The recent utterances of Nevada newspapers concerning this subject are interesting.

Here follow long extracts from the Sentinel and Silver State containing such sentenes as Nevada is poor and steadily growing worse year by year. Our population is too small to maintain a State government. The meagerness of our numbers is a constant reproach to us from the other States of the Union. Frankly put, Nevada is not a State of which her people may justly boast or feel proud.

And

It is nonsensical for the 50,000 inhabitants of Nevada to attempt longer to maintain an expensive State Government, and the farce must close in a few years.

The Times then adds: But the Mormons of Utah are unwilling to gain the advantages of Statehood by the proposed annexation. The Salt Lake Herald, which is the chief organ of the Mormon Church and the leading journal of Utah, responds to the suggestions of the Nevada papers as follows:

After being imposed upon and oppressed in various ways for forty years it is expected that the Government will have the heart to further afflict Utah by saddling upon it the dying and pauper State on the west? We feel sorry for Nevada. It is a matter for regret that she is so rapidly going to her grave, but we know of no rule of equity or charity which would suggest that Utah should be weighed down in order that the rotten borough may avoid death. Utah may be eager for Statehood, but we believe we express the honest opinion of nine men when we say that, ugly and objectionable as a Territorial government is, it is preferable to a State on the conditions suggested. We can get along as a Territory much better than as a State with barren and corrupt Nevada as a part of that State. The distracted people of Nevada should look in another direction for relief and salvation. As California owns them, and also owns whatever is of value in the State, why not go to California for succor and ask to be attached to the great commonwealth that is able to take care of them.

The Times says: "The answer to this question is that the powers that rule Nevada would not give up two seats in the Senate, and California does not desire to enlarge her domain. The returns of Nevada's vote show how small a population suffices to fill those seats and also mark the decay of the Commonwealth. In 1876 there were cast 19,691 votes; in 1880 the number was 18,343; in 1884 it fell to 12,771, and at the last National election it was only 12,596. The population has fallen from 62,266 in 1880 to a little more than 40,000 at present. The total valuation of the taxable property of the State is now only $35,652,000. Fortunately there is no probability that any one of the new States soon to be admitted will ever suffer such a decline as has marked the melancholy history of Nevada. Each of them can support a large population. Their industries are permanent and thriving, and will surely grow from year to year."

For the benefit of the Salt Lake Herald and the New York Times we will add to the above that the proposition to annex Nevada to Utah or California never made a ripple on the surface. It was almost unanimously repudiated by the voters and residents of the State. Nevada was robbed by a trick, of the country lying between the present line and the summit of the Sierras and that is the only territory she really needs to make her a great State. But without even that she is O K and needs neither sympathy nor charity. In all that makes a State Nevada grows from year to year. She is making homes, orchards and farms in the valleys for her people instead of temporary mining cabins in the mountains and another census or two will show a strong, healthy and steady growth.

ANYONE who walks through the alleys in Reno will find himself holding his nose and wondering how the town is going to get along without a siege of sickness. The long drouth, extreme heat and low water are all favorable to typhoid fever, and when backed up by the smells that rise to heaven, it looks like breeding an epidemic. Quite a number of saloons have wooden receptacles, from which the poison is carried down to the ground, where it has full liberty to poison earth, air, water and whatever else it comes in contact with. No one would imagine how these places smell unless they get in their neighborhood. The dry heat just makes them speak right out, and they are alive with disease. A few dollars spent in connecting with the sewers in a proper way would fix it all. The same condition exists at the back of many residence lots in Reno. Precious lives will be lost from these causes, and the GAZETTE does not intend to take any of the responsibility. There will be dead people in Reno this fall and they will be murdered just as much as if the delinquents took guns and shot them down.

THIS is the time of the year for every business man to be moving with a quick step. The vacation season is about over and activity should characterize business from this time on.

Maybrick Murder Case.

NEW YORK, August 9.—A cable special from London says: "In addition to the memorial to the Government in behalf of Mrs. Maybrick, signed by most of the barristers and solicitors of the Liverpool circuit and the petition circulated among the merchants and brokers, Parliament itself has taken up the cause of the condemned woman. A number of members of the House of Commons have decided to make a combined appeal to the Home Office for a reprieve. Their action is based not only on the confusion in the medical testimony taken, but also in the peculiar behavior of the Judge, which has excited a ferment of indignation throughout the country.

"The foreman of the jury has been interviewed, and he showed himself by his answers and comments on the case to be possessed of only a confused notion of the evidence which had been presented in the court. He admitted that he would not be sorry if a reprieve were granted, notwithstanding his voice was in favor of the verdict of murder. The general impression left by the interview is that the jurors allowed themselves to be swayed and biased by the one-sided summing up of the Judge, and gave a hasty verdict without giving the case and evidence any personal consideration."

Regarding the chances of interference with the sentence on the part of the Home Secretary, Mr. Macklin said: "They have a curious law in England providing that where an adverse decision is rendered in any but a murder case an appeal can be taken to a higher court, and from that to the House of Lords, but when the case is murder the decision rendered by the jury is final, and cases where a judge's sentence has been overruled by the Home Secretary are very rare, indeed. Still I hope we can do something."

Roe and Macklin, counsel for Mrs. Maybrick in this country, have cabled her London solicitors asking if Home Secretary Matthews will consider new evidence if furnished immediately. Macklin says that they have considerable evidence to submit corroborating Mrs. Maybrick's testimony, and also testimony as to he standing and character socially in this country.

Custom-House Clerk Arrested.

NEW YORK, August 10.—G. J. Orton, a Custom House clerk, has been arrested for sending scurrillous letters to Harrison, Cleveland, Windom, Archbishop Corrigan and other prominent people. The scurrillous matter was written on the outside of envelopes. On the inside was a cicular denouncing William Vogel, a tinware manufacturer. Orton says Vogel wronged him grievously, and he took this method of bringing his wrongs to public notice. He declines to specify the nature of his wrongs.

Thirsting for Gore.

ATLANTA, Ga., August 10.—Patrick Calhoun, a grandson of John C. Calhoun, and counsel for the West Point Terminal Company, and J. D. Williamson, President of the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus Railroad, left here last night to fight a duel, result of a quarrel on railroad matters before the State Legislature. The result is not known.

An Aeronaut Injured.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., August 10.—Prof. W. K. Perry ascended in his balloon yesterday. When 700 feet high the baloon bursted and began to fall, gradually accelerating its speed. Perry struck the ground with a crash. Many bones were broken and it is believed he cannot recover.

A Valuable Animal.

Railroad Collision.

CHARLOTTE, N. Y., August 10.—A collision between two passenger trains occurred near Forest Lawn, on the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg Railroad, this morning, telescoping four cars, killing one person and badly injuring eight others.

The one person killed was Emma Herrin of St. Johns, Mich., aged 23 years. Her father and mother were on the train and both were badly hurt. Andrew Tiffany of Oswego was badly injured and is not expected to live. Mrs. Lewis Moore of Gratwick, N. Y., had a leg broken. Mr. Brown of Sherman, N. Y., had his leg broken, one foot and the toes of the other cut off. The other two are unknown.

John Jay of Oswego died at the hospital from his injuries. The injured are: Sarah M. Sweet of West Walcott, hip injured; Frederick Bell of Sheboygan, Mich., a compound fracture of the leg, and Louise Moore of Lordstown, Canada, leg broken.

A False Report.

WASHINGTON, August 10.—Adjutant General Newton has received a telegram from General Miles at San Francisco, informing him that the Commanding General of the Department of Columbia telegraphed that Captain Luhn of the Fourth Infantry had been sent with his company to Calispee, Washington Territory, to investigate the reports of the Indian outrages. His reports, under date of August 7th, say there were no haystacks burned, and no threats made by the Indians. Some land was burned over, but there was no reason to think the fire was started by the Indians. Captain Luhn has been ordered back to Fort Spokane.

The Hawaiian Riot.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 10.—From the remarks of the passengers on the Australia, which arrived here to-day, it seems that it has been arranged to have 400 or 500 more persons participate in the insurrections at Hawaii, among them being some in the best standing, both among the whites and natives. Letters were taken from Wilcox which led to the arrest of several well-known people, among whom, it is said, was J. E. Brown, editor of a Hawaiian newspaper. The general impression is that the leaders of the riot will never be tried, as they will demand a jury trial by the natives, and the majority of these are in sympathy with the movement.

New Railroad Tariff.

CHICAGO, August 10.—The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe issued a new tariff this morning on through business from points west of the Missouri River. This tariff is applicable only to its eastern extension from Kansas City—Chicago, Santa Fe & California. This means that it will not divide its business from points west of the Missouri River with any other road between Kansas City and Chicago. A big fight will probably result.

Eastern Shake.

SARATOGA, N. Y., August 10.—A shock of an earthquake of 45 seconds duration was felt in the Adirondacks at 8:40 this morning. Dishes rattled and buildings shook in at least a dozen places. The motion was from east to west. The noise which accompanied the shock was very distinct and sharp. The shock was particularly hard at Warrensburg.

Fruit Sale.

CHICAGO, August 10.—The Earl Fruit Company sold two cars of California pears at the following rates: Refrigerator Bartlett, $1.90 to $2; Beurce hardy, $1.10 to $1, being a total of twelve carloads sold here to-day. The market is completely overstocked, especially for Saturday.

Missing Man Seen.

BOSTON, August 10.—G. C. Brown, of Brown, Heese & Clark, Treasurer of the Riverside and Oswego Corporation, who disappeared so mysteriously, was seen in Albany at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning. He appeared as usual and carried a big hand bag. He has not been seen since.

Decision Postponed.

LONDON, August 10.—A petition has been presented to the Courts by the Matthesons for the winding up of the Newfoundland Copper Company. The Mattheson creditors hold notes to the amount of $230,000. Decision was postponed.

Packing-House Burned.

HAMMOND, Ind., August 10.—The packing house of G. H. Hammond & Co. was burned this morning. Loss, $300,000.

Egan Presented.

VALPARISO, August 10.—Minister Egan was presented to the President of Chili to-day and the usual courtesies were exchanged.

Federal Appointments and Other Matters.

BAR HARBOR, August 10.—President Harrison has made the following appointments: Samuel F. Phillips of North Carolina, Commissioner on the part of the United States under the Venezuelan and United States treaty concerning the adjustment of claims; Charles G. Pope of Missouri, Consul at Toronto; Richard G. Lay of the District of Columbia, Consul General o Ottawa.

A dispatch boat reached here this morning with Secretary Tracy on board, and an hour later the Secretary and his daughter, Mrs. Welmerding, Lieutenant and Mrs. Mason and Captain Cowles, called on the President. The afternoon will be spent on the Sappho by the President and Secretary Blaine.

A California Failure.

Special to the GAZETTE.]

MARYSVILLE, Cal., August 10.—Daniel McGanney, a prominent farmer and miner living at Smartsville, filed a schedule of his liabilities last evening and made an assignment to the Sheriff. The amount set forth on paper is $121,000. It is estimated it will take another $10,000 to pay his petty accounts. The most of his creditors are secured. Over $90,000 is held by banks and individuals in San Francisco.

The Caledonean Picnic.

Special to the GAZETTE.]

CARSON, August 10.—The Caledonian Picnic was well attended by large crowds from Virginia and Reno. The programme was fully carried out. One of the best games of basball ever played this side of the Sierras took place. Donnelly of Reno acted as umpire and gave general satisfaction. The Truckees won the game by a score of 7 to 6

Riotous Hungarians.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., August 10.—The Hungarians made another raid this morning at the Moyer coke plant and drove the men from the works. Squire Duncan and officers Franks and Shunn attempted to arrest fifteen of the rioters, when they were set upon by the mob. Duncan was terribly beaten and left for dead. Shunn and Franks escaped. The Sheriff will organize a posse this afternoon to arrest the rioters.

Nipsic and Alert Sighted.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 10.—The steamer Australia, from Honolulu, brings the news that the U. S. steamers Nipsic and Alert, from Samoa, were sighted fifteen miles out from Honolulu on August 2d, just before the Australia sailed.

Concluded to Reconsider.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 10.—Advices from Honolulu say that King Kalakalua refused to recognize Severance as United States Consul-General because he was dismissed from office as Hawaian Consul at San Francisco for cause, and declaring that his appointment was an insult, but finally he yielded to the solicitations of his ministers and recognized him.

Standing Advertisements.

Postmaster-General Wanamaker, in discussing the value of advertising, says: "To discontinue your advertisement is like taking in your sign. If you want to do business you must let the people know it. Standing advertisements, when they are changed frequently, are better and cheaper than reading notices. They look more substantial and business like, and insure confidence. I would as soon think of doing business without clerks as without advertising."

Snow and Rain Storms.

The Philadelphia Record of July 30th says: Last year bore off the palm for the most furious snow storms of the century. This year will thunder down the ages for its furious rainstorms. The storm that passed over Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin on Saturday did damage to the extent of millions of dollars.

Protecting Brakemen.

No need of it—none. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will and does preserve those who use it from every type of malarial disease, whether intermittent or bilious remittent. For nearly thirty-five years it has been a professional recognized specific for the preventive of these tenacious maladies, not only on our own soil, but the tropical and equatorial lands where the scourge is prevalant at all seasons and in its worst forms. Biliousness, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney complaint, nervousness and debility are also ailments to the complete removal of which the Bitters long since demonstrated its adequacy.

Confirmed.

The favorable impression produced on the first appearance of the agreeable liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs a few years ago has been more than confirmed by the pleasant experience of all who have used it, and the success of the proprietors and manufacturers —the Cal. Fig Syrup Company.

A GENEROUS MAN.

Matt. McCabe, of New Brunswick, Ill., offers to pay five dollars to any person troubled with bloody flux, who will take Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy according to directions and does not get well in the shortest possible time. One-half of a 25-cent bottle of this remedy cured him of bloody flux, after he had tried other medicines and the prescriptions of physicians without benefit. Mr. McCabe is perfectly safe in making this offer, as more than a thousand bottles of this remedy are sold each day and it has never been known to fail in any case of colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, diarrhoea or bloody flux, when the plain printed directions were followed. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half a dollar a bottle, at S. J. Hodgkinson's druggist.

A Woman's Discovery.

For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking the first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle was miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus write W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelvy N. C —Get a free trial bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

A BABY'S LEAP

Through the Window of a Railroad Car Going at Full Speed.

There is one lucky baby and a happy mother in California to-night, says the Stockton Independent of August 4th. The mother and babe were passengers on the Southern Pacific north-bound passenger train yesterday afternoon. The child, which was about a year old, was standing in its mother's lap looking out of the open window. It gave one of those sudden springs to which babies are addicted and, before the mother could clutch it, went out through the open window. The shriek of the mother brought a brakeman to the spot, who pulled the bell cord, and the train, which was going at full speed, was checked as soon as possible.

The conductor soon made his appearance, and when the case was explained to him, ordered the train to be backed up slowly till the spot was reached where the baby had made the frightful plunge. To the surprise of all the sound of the babies cries were heard, for it was supposed that it would be instantly killed.

Nearly every man on the train jumped off to search for the little one, which was found by the road side crying lustily. It was soon placed in its mother's arms, perfectly uninjured, not even showing a scratch as an evidence of its narrow escape from death.

ROBERT MANTELL.

At McKissick's Opera House on the 14th Inst.

Robert Mantell, who is known as the founder of the suppressed emotional school of acting, will appear at the Opera House on Wednesday evening next in his great role of Monbars, in which he has won deserved success throughout the country. The New Orleans Picayune says:

The patrons of the Academy of Music were served with a rich and rare dramatic treat last night. They saw the handsome Robert Mantell as Monbars in D'Ennery's play of that name. The same force and earnestness that makes "Jim the Penman" great before an audience—while it is commonplace in itself—makes "Monbars a great play. Mr. Mantell is delightfully handsome and manly, a gentlemen in every movement, with eloquent pleading eyes, and a voice whose slightest whisper can be distinctly heard. The same quality that won him fame and friends as Loris in "Fedora" serve him in "Monbars," and last night a large audience applauded him to the echo and called him before the curtain at the close of each act. Praise in this performance need not end with the star, as every part is well played. "Monbars" has made a hit. There is a chance now for the public to appreciate good actors and a good play.

DOUGLAS COUNTY.

A Reservoir Site—A Wood Drive—Artesian Well Co. Etc.

The Genoa Courier of the 9th inst. says:

The finest reservoir site in this State is on the East Fork of the Carson river.

Owing to the scarcity of water this year, it took Mr. Longabaugh a little over seven weeks to get his wood-drive down the Carson river. The drive started June 9th, and the last stick was taken out of the river July 31st.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of Douglas County Artesian Well Co., held at the Courier office last Monday, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, J. W. Haines; Trustees, H. H. Springmeyer, H. Fulstone and J. W. Haines; Secretary, George M. Smith.

Ted Dolan came up from Empire this week and goes to Alpine county to-day to cut another lot of wood for the drive of 1890. In the sultry days of August, in the bleak winds of November, in February's driving storms, in the blossoming months of April and May, Ted courteth the lofty pine on Alpine's scenic highs. The remainder of the time he escorteth the wood-drive. This is equivalent to saying that he works all the time, and he does.

FINE BRICK CLAY.

A Great Discovery on James Sullivan's Ranch.

Reno already has three brick kilns where an excellent article is turned out, and which supplies the trade to a great extent, but James Sullivan claims to have a clay on his ranch which is the superior of anything in these parts. It is Mr. Sullivan's intention to burn 150,000 brick in a short time. The kiln is about completed, and when this is off his hands another kiln of the same quantity will be burned, making a total of 300,000 as fine brick as can be produced on the coast. Mr. Sullivan has tested his clay and knows whereof he speaks when he says that Washoe county cannot produce as good as is located on his ranch. This is good news for our thriving community and the GAZETTE hopes to see Mr. Sullivan's highest expectations realized.

Greatly Exaggerated

This morning's overland, due here at 7:30, did not arrive until 1:55 P. M., having been delayed by the snowshed fire, the extent of which had been greatly exaggerated. The extent of the fire was about three-fourths of a mile of sheds.

New Baptist Church.

A GAZETTE reporter was to-day shown the plans of the new Baptist Church to be erected on Second street, Powning's addition. It is to be 40x60, 22 foot posts and the height from the ground to top of spire will be 100 feet. The seating capacity will be 316.

A DRUNKEN NATION.

Belgium the Most Dissipated Country in Europe.

Belgium still holds its own as the most drunken country of Europe. On an average each man, woman and child consumes yearly 240 quarts of beer and thirteen quarts of spirits. It may be that Bavarians drink more beer than that, but taking both together, the Belgian record is unrivalled. The Government is at last aroused to a sense of the evils of the situation, and some restrictive laws are to be put in force. The right to collect by legal process debts incurred in drinking houses has been abolished; it is forbidden to sell drink to persons under sixteen years of age, and to sell anyone liquor until he is drunk is made a crime. The effect of these laws will be looked for with interest. It can scarcely fail to be for good.

Of Interest to Stock Gamblers.

A suit is in progress in the San Francisco Courts to test the section of the new Constitution, which provides that all moneys paid for the purchase and sale of stocks on margins or futures are void, and that parties can recover back all moneys paid on such contracts. This is an important point, and if established it will change the entire system of stock dealing and many additional suits will be commenced by those who have been ruined on margins.

A SHRINKING EFFECT.

The Man Who was Two Years In Arrears for His Paper.

An exchange relates the following: "A man was caught out in a heavy rain; to evade the shower he crept into a hollow log, the entrance barely permitting him to get in, although once in he had plenty of room. The rain continued and so swelled the log as to partly close the hole and imprisoned the man. He could not call loud enough to be heard and in despair laid down to think over his past life. All his misdeeds and shortcomings appeared before his vision, and through his prayers he sought relief for his conscience; but it was no go. At last he remembered being in arrears with his paper for two years, and brooding over this, his frame began to shiver and he felt smaller and smaller, and all at once he almost walked out of the log a wiser and, let us hope, a better man.

Could Not be President.

At a christening the other day in an eastern city, the aged minister spoke a few words of counsel to the young parents: "Watch over this child with unceasing care. Choose his companions wisely and see that he is always surrounded with uplifting influences. If you train him to walk in the path of rectitude he may become a George Washington or an Abraham Lincoln. What are you going to name him?" "Jane," said the mother.

IT WAS LONG ENOUGH.

Colonel—Well, what's the matter now?

Private—I've got liver trouble and dyspepsia, and ought to get leave for thirty days.

Colonel—I'll give you ten, and if you take Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla that will be long enough.

Fred H. Blecker, of 19 Montgomery street, San Francisco, writes: I have spent many a dollar for medicines, but the only thing that ever stopped my liver trouble and dyspepsia, was Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla.

Gustav Solomon, of 223 Valencia street, San Francisco, writes that it has entirely freed him of his indigestion and sick headaches.

RIDING TO WIN.

Though the Race Was Lost the Prize Was Won.

"I did not know you had so much poetry in your composition," observed Mrs. Anstruther, languidly.

Leila Marsden arranged the delicate lace at her wrist with an air of abstraction. "He is very good looking, and he rides splendidly," she said, "and he—er—he does love me to distraction, you know."

"As many others probably will do before your time is over, my dear; but that has nothing to do with the case. You must get married, and Temple is just the man for you. As for the other one, he'll get over it in time; they always do. You are surely not going to trouble your silly little head about him?"

Miss Marsden rose and walked across the room to the veranda. "I'll think about it," she said, half turning in the doorway to glance back at her sister. "I'll think about it, and I'll make up my mind this evening. There! I can't promise more than that, can I, Rose? You are satisfied, aren't you!"

"Yes, I am satisfied," replied Mrs. Anstruther; and as she dozed through the long afternoon that followed she allowed her sister to figure very prominently in her dreams as the wife of Major Temple Arburton of the — hussars and future Baronet.

Sizirabad is famous for its pretty girls; but prettiest and most striking of all was Leila Marsden at the race ball that night. "Race ball" is, perhaps, too big a term to be properly applied to it; but the arrival of a couple of regiments on their way to the frontier had stirred up Sizirabad to sports on three days of the week, the race ball intervening.

"You'll come down to see the finish to-morrow, Miss Marsden?" asked Tommy Campbell, the wit of Sizirabad, as he strolled up to Leila that evening and asked her for a dance. "There's the cup race coming off, you know, and the ladies' handicap, and the race Willoughby rides to win—the one with the lady as prize."

"What do you mean?" asked Leila, laughing.

"He means the ladies' prize race," said Major Arburton, standing close behind her, and glowering at Campbell over her shoulder.

"And is Mr. Willoughby quite likely to win it?" asked Leila, somewhat indifferently.

"The betting is all on him, but he's got a ticklish mount, and I don't like that left-hand corner of the course. With a pulling horse, and a vicious brute into the bargain, you stand a rare chance of jumping the hedge and disappearing down the precipice. Can't imagine why they don't arrange things better in this outlandish land; but then I never have seen the advantages of India. Beg your pardon, Miss Marsden, didn't mean a pun." And he disappeared among the dancers with a comical look on his face, while Leila laughed forcedly and turned to her partner.

"How odd he is!" she said. "By the way, what horse is Mr. Willoughby going to ride to-morrow in the Ladies' race?"

"One of mine—Mazeppa. You seem to take a great interest in that fellow Willoughby." [Jealously.]

"Not at all. He is rather a friend of my sister's," replied Leila, carelessly. "Are not you going to ride in this interesting race, Major Arburton?"

"If you wish it [very tenderly], and if my weight will allow of it." [Doubtfully.]

The mixed sentiment jarred on Leila; but he was rich, in a good regiment, with excellent prospects. What mattered it that he was far beyond thirty, and no longer so slim as he had been? It was a good match for a penniless girl and she had no choice; and so, long before the evening was over, people were whispering together concerning Miss Marsden and Major Arburton, and a report flew about that he had proposed and had been accepted.

The truth or otherwise of such statements was not to be read on Leila's face. To all outward observance she was as calm and haughty and beautiful as ever. None knew that she looked at her programme over and over again to make sure that there was no mistake, and that the initials "C. C. W." scrawled against the fifteenth valse made her await that dance with a sickening heart.

It came at last. The band struck up the strains of a well-known valse, the room began to fill, and presently Leila Marsden, with paler cheeks than usual and a strange beating of the heart, was floating round with Charlie Willoughby as partner.

"Shall we sit the rest out?" he asked, when they paused at length.

Leila bent her head in assent, and they passed out of the room on to the long, low veranda, somewhat to the dismay of her sister who had watched them eagerly while together. The moonlight threw the girl's pale face and tall, slight figure into strong relief against the dark veranda background. Charlie Willoughby leant against a pillar overrun with creeper and looked at her fixedly. He made no excuse for himself, nor did he break the silence between them. His eyes searched her face as though he would read there what he dared not trust himself to hear.

Presently Leila spoke. Her voice sounded faint and far away even to herself. "I hear," she said, pleadingly, "that you are going to ride a very vicious horse to-morrow in the Ladies' prize race. Please don't ride it; please do not."

"And I hear that you are engaged to marry Major Arburton" (without the slightest reference to her appeal). "Is that true, Leila, or is it not?"

She looked down and traced a little tern on the stone floor with her foot.

"Is it true, or is it not?" he repeated, fiercely.

She lifted her eyes to his, and saw there the passion which trembled in his voice.

"Don't be angry; oh, do not!" she cried, putting up her hands with a deprecating gesture; "they have made me do it. I am a burden to my sister, you know; and I couldn't stand it any longer; and he is not so bad; but I love you the best—oh, so much the best! You know it; only I—I—I am so miserable."

"Doubtless," he said, gravely, never for an instant removing his eyes from the fair, piteous face; "so am I—very miserable; so have I been for the past month, but my misery doesn't seem to touch you much. So you are going to marry this Crœsus, this elderly future Baronet, and throw me over quite, are you, Leila?"

She twisted and untwisted her hands nervously, but made no reply.

"And you are good enough to take sufficient interest in me to wish me not to break my neck to-morrow!"

She was still silent.

"Very good. Then listen to me. I ride to-morrow, and I ride to win, and you are to be the prize. Yes, you—do not look so startled—you. I ride to win, or I ride to—Never mind that part of the business. If I win I shall consider you mine in spite of all the Major Arburtons in the world. If not—do you understand the alternative, Leila?"

She bent her head. Could she avoid understanding it?

"It lies with you," he went on steadily. "You know my horse, you know the race-course, you know me. If to-morrow before starting you bid me ride to win, very good; if not— The music has begun again. Shall I take you back to your elderly future Baronet?"

"My dear Leila, what nonsense!" cried Mrs. Anstruther. "Rub your cheeks, child, and drink this wine. You look as white a ghost, and about as unhappy. Not go to the races! You will have every one saying it is all off again just as it is all on. It is too aggravating of you, really."

It was the day following the ball. Leila, in her sister's room, was utterly refusing to accompany her to the race-course, and equally positive in her refusal to see Major Arburton.

"I know what it is," Mrs. Anstruther went on, angrily; "that boy has been talking nonsense to you. It was too foolish of you to give him a dance last night. If I had known of it I should have taken you home most certainly."

"He did not talk nonsense, and he is not foolish, nor is he a boy," cried Leila, vehemently; and then she gave way and relapsed into copious weeping.

"At any rate he is only a sub-lieutenant, and can not possibly have more than five hundred a year. And what is more, he doesn't mean it seriously with you. If you throw over Major Arburton now you will be throwing him over for a mere shadow. Everybody knows what a flirt Charlie Willoughby is. He makes love to every girl he meets."

"That isn't true!" exclaimed Leila, with an effort at drying her tears.

"H'm! How about Fanny Hope, and one or two others I could mention?" Silence. "And how about his debts?" Silence. "And his gambling—and that actress, and—"

Leila sprang to her feet. "I won't listen any more!" she cried. "I do care for him, and I hate Major Arburton, and I won't marry him, and I will not go to the races to-day."

Mrs. Anstruther grew pale. She felt her last chance was going. "Then I shall have to remind you," she said, firmly, "that I can not support all my brothers and sisters all their lives. I did my best for Nell, and I am doing my best for you. You seem to forget that I have children of my own to be brought up. I counted on your marrying as soon as possible. I did not count on your throwing up a reasonable chance."

It was cruel, but it had its effect. Leila turned very white, then she moved to the door. "I will go with you," she said, scarcely above a whisper.

The Ladies' prize race was the next on the programme. Considerable excitement prevailed among the fair sex as to who would win it. Leila alone sat calm and unmoved among the spectators. She did not seem to hear or see any thing till suddenly there was a little stir and a bustle, and murmurs of "Of course he'll win;" "He's sure of the race;" "I feel inclined to congratulate you already, Mr. Willoughby; you look so like winning," etc.

The hero of the race took little notice of such-like remarks. He made his way to Leila, and bent low over her.

"Which is it to be?" he asked.

For an instant earth and sky reeled round her, then her brain cleared, and she saw his face, resolute, handsome, desperate. She hesitated for one instant; then she spoke:

"Ride to win."

The words were so low he could scarcely hear them, but when he turned away there was a smile in his eyes.

The horses and their riders were drawn up in a line. Leila strained her eyes to watch every movement of black and white, Mr. Willoughby's colors. Mazeppa fidgeted and caught at the bit. There was some little delay, then the flag was dropped; they were off. At first breathless silence, then growing excitement. The course was a small one, and the race was to be run twice round.

Major Arburton, who had not taken part in it, uttered a "Thank God!" as Mazeppa passed the dangerous corner in safety for the first time. "Blue's to the front; no, yellow's pushing up; no, that's Meldon. Stick to it, Meldon. Willoughby's passed him. By Jove! he's got his work cut out for him with that horse. Now they're neck-and-neck. Good race. No, Willoughby's gaining; no, Meldon; no—by heaven!"

A scream from one of the ladies, a general consternation in the grand stand, a sudden cessation of interest in the race. Charlie Willoughby rode to win, but the providence he had dared revenged itself on him. Mazeppa had forced the bit between his teeth, shied away from the course, and, leaping the frail protection of a hedge which separated it from the side of the hill, had disappeared with his rider.

"It was a narrow shave, and no mistake," said Charlie Willoughby, going over the story for the hundredth time with his wife the second month of their marriage.

"But the best part of it all was when I knelt down beside you and would not leave you," laughed Leila. "I shall never forget Major Arburton's face, nor his words next day when he told me all was over between us, and that the best thing I could do, after having made such an exhibition of myself, was to marry 'that young puppy.'"

"No," said her husband, tenderly, "the best part of it all was that I rode to win, and that I did win—what I most wanted—my wife."—London World.

Cholera in Michigan.

Dr. F. D. Larke, of Rogers City, Michigan, says the epidemic of last year in Presque Isle county, in which so many persons lost their lives, was choleric dysentery instead of cholera as first reported. He used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and says it succeeded, where all other remedies failed. Not a single case was lost in which it was used. This remedy is the most reliable and most successful medicine known for colic, cholera morbus, dysentry, diarrhoea and bloody flux. Twenty-five and fifty cent bottles for sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.
